

MARINE TECHNOLOGY REPORTER

Microdive SCUBA Geat for Abu Dhabi Police

05/20/2009

The Abu Dhabi Police Force has become the first to buy Microdive scuba systems from Mini B Ltd, for use during operational policing. The organization has bought 20 Micro-B systems with 1.5 litre tanks which are the smallest scuba systems in the world and weigh just 7.5 kg. They are designed for short duration dives in shallow water for tasks such as evidence retrieval or the preliminary inspection of a boat's hull. They can also be used to enable emergency crew escapes following, for example, helicopter immersion.

The Micro-B system is the smallest model in the Microdive range from Mini B Ltd, Essex, England which has designed them specifically for use in shallow water.

A complete Microdive system including fins, mask, wetsuit and snorkel can all be contained within the backpack of the larger models and all may be routinely carried in any police vehicle. This would ensure that Abu Dhabi police officers trained in Microdiving or traditional open water diving are able to respond immediately to any situation where it is necessary to go under water.

A Microdive Micro-B is seen closed and ready for use. With its cover removed, the system beside it reveals the scuba unit's components.

<http://www.mini-b.com>